POPULAR YOUNG LADY EASTER SUNDAY BRIDE

Miss Frances Roberta Sampson, popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Sampson, of Templeton avenue, became the bride of Winston W. Barghoorn, of Burlingame, last Sunday afternoon at 4:15, in St. John's Episcopal church, San Francisco.

The bride was dressed in a beautiful white all-over lace gown, with the conventional veil and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white cyclemon and orange blossoms.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Julia Mae Romer, sister of the bride, was fashionably dressed in a yellow lace gown and carried a bouquet of beautiful yellow roses. The bridesmaids were becomingly dressed in gowns of pink and green. They carried bouquets of baby roses and sweet peas.

A reception followed the wedding at the home of the bride's parents, on Templeton avenue, a large number of relatives and friends of the bride and groom being present.

ANOTHER HIGHWAY BEING IMPROVED

The county road beginning at Hillside boulevard, Daly City, and running to the east of the cemeteries and on to South San Francisco is being improved for three quarters of a mile south as far as Mt. Olivet. Heretofore this road has been avoided by motorists, because of its condition, but now it will undoubtedly be quite popular, after the oil and screening surface is put on. This road will be widened and improved in spots where it is somewhat narrow.

WELL BABY CLINIC WHIST

An afternoon whist was held at the home of Mrs. E. Boyle, of Winchester street, for the benefit of the Well Baby Clinic. A most delightful time was enjoyed by the whist players, the refreshments being all that could be desired and the affair in every way a success. A substantial sum was realized for this worthy cause. Mrs. Boyle was a very charming hostess, and was highly complimented.

DEDICATE HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING

On Thursday evening the new auto mechanics building of the Jefferson Union high school was formally dedicated. There was a large attendance of parents and other interested citizens of the district.

The first part of the program was the inspection of the new building by the public. On the lower floor, which is entirely occupied by machinery and other equipment, students dressed in overalls were busy in regular class operations under the direction of their instructor, Mr. Claude M. Hackley. Some were making repairs on automobiles, others were rebuilding batteries, or grinding valves, or operating a lathe, or working at the forge, or putting on new brake-bands, etc. On the upper floor are two classrooms for the department, one of which was occupied by students doing mechanical drawing under the instruction of Miss Effie Potter.

The second part of the program took place in the auditorum of the high school building. Principal James Ferguson presided. Two selections were rendered by the high school chorus, led by Miss Bertha Holtz, instructor in music. Mr. Truman Bentley, president of the high school board of education, spoke in behalf of the trustees, and thanked the community for its co-operation in voting the necessary amount of money to construct and equip the shop building. He outlined the policy of the board of education, and assured the people of the district that the interests of the children, both as to their present and future success, was the chief concern of the trustees. This, he said, involves not only the pupils' mental training but their physical and spiritual welfare as well. In this connection he referred to the urgent need of a gymnasium for the high school in order that the physical education program laid down by the State Department of Education may be carried out.

Mr. James Mullin, editor of the Labor Clarion, San Francisco, was the next speaker. He congratulated the board of education and faculty for the modern spirit of education which was shown not only in the address of President Bentley but in the practical demonstration of work which they had just witnessed in the auto mechanics shop. Education, he said, is not what it was thirty years ago. Today, boys and girls who are going into industry are given equal opportunity with those who are preparing for higher institutions of learning and professions. Our schools today recognize the fact that prosperity comes to the nation which has the best trained workers. And they also recognize that it is the duty of the state to educate its citizen up to his highest capacity for his own sake as well as for that of the nation.

Mrs. McKee, president of the Jefferson Union High School P. T. A., spoke in behalf of the parents and teachers, and gave a most hearty invitation to everyone present to join the Parent-Teachers' Association, so that the greatest possible co-operation could be effected for the school in the interests of the students.

Mr. Claude M. Hackley, instructor in auto mechanics, spoke in behalf of his students, thanking the board of education for its generous support of the auto department. He spoke of the conditions under which the students worked in the old shop in the basement and of the interest which was added when the new shop and modern equipment were made available.

Miss Abbott certainly knows her subject and her audience was held in attention and many expressed themselves as having been glad of the opportunity of hearing her. The teachers of Crocker school especially enjoyed her, as what she said concerned them as well as the parents. Her remarks cereainly were appropriate at a Parent-Teachers' meeting.

MRS. CLARICE OLSON IS LAID TO REST

Funeral services for Mrs. Clarice Olsen, who passed away on April 16, were held at Lasswell's Mortuary Chapel last Monday at 11 A. M. The Rev. William A. Spencer, of the Daly City Methodist Church conducted the services, paying a high tribute to one who was recognized as a leader in the communnity. W. M. McGregor sang two sacred solos, with David Broom at the organ. Interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery. Mr. C. K. Christian, of Seattle, Mrs. Olsen's brother, arrived in Daly City in time to take charge of the funeral arrangements. He wishes to thank those who so kindly sent the beautiful floral wreaths, and expressing their deep sympathy in this time of sorrow.

Mrs Olsen was a talented musician and gave freely of her services in her many social activities. A scholar of dynamic personality; an ardent sportswoman in all matters aquatic, she was an enthusiast in boating, swimming and fishing. She gave her services in the Great War, serving for two years with the Y. M. C. A. at their main center in Marsailles.

Born in Sydney, N. S. W., Australia, she came to America at the age of 16 and has held many important positions in both California and Washington.

A FEW REMARKS ON GOING TO CHURCH

Yes, in this twentieth century, in spite of automobiles and radios, people still go to church. Some churches are crowded every Sunday. Children by the hundred flock to Sunday schools, and mature men and women still find their accustomed places in the pews. Doubtless it will always be so for there is still a place in the hearts of men, women and children which the world cannot satisfy and which can be only satisfied when people are assembled together in worship.

On Sunday evening at 7:45 in Grace Presbyterian church, Hanover and Evergreen, Rev. John R. Stevenson will discss "Going to Church." He will endeavor to tell the people why they come and how to obtain the best results from attending church.

The Sunday school will soon close their contest, which has resulted in increased attendance and interest, and the losing sides are to be the hosts in providing a party to the winners.

HOSTESS TO STUDY CIRCLE

The Crocker P. T. A. Study Circle met for its usual meeting at the home of Mrs. O. Pauw last Monday afternoon. An appropriate article was read by the hostess. The busy members sewed as they talked. BERNAL AVENUE ROAD IS OPENED

Another new high-speed artery, offering a short route between the down-town section of San Francisco and Daly City, has been opened to traffic, the Bernal Cut, now officially known as Bernal avenue, having recently been opened, and is receiving an unusually heavy patronage.

The northerly end of this new road is at the junction of Dolores street and San Jose avenue and Brook street, which is south of Thirtieth street. Its southern end is at San Jose avenue and Monterey boulevard.

Forming a broad passage through what was formerly a barrier of hills, the new boulevard consists of a 4,200 foot link between the Mission district and regions to the north.

Bernal avenue will relieve much of the congestion now existing on Mission street and save many blocks of travel over alternate routes.

Down-town and North of Market traffic will reach the cut by following Dolores street to its end. Emerging from the pass, it will enter San Jose avenue, which thoroughfare will lead it to Mission street at Daly City.

More than two years were required for construction of the boulevard, made possible by a $1,400,000 bond issue in 1927.

Almost 120 feet wide, the cut embraces two eight-foot sidewalks, a vehicular roadway of 42 feet and a right of way for double tracks of the Southern and Municipal railways. The project was completed under supervision of M. J. Callagah, assistant city engineer.

OFFICERS INSTALLED BY PERSHING P. T. A.

A special meeting of the General Pershing P. T. A. was held in their meeting room Monday, April 21, for the purpose of installing new officers for the coming year. Those installed were: Mrs. E. Boyle, President; Mrs. J. Burns, Vice-President; Mrs. Lucille F. Forrest, Secretary; Mrs. P. A. Lyons, Treasurer; Mrs. Wallace, Auditor; Mrs. Pechenino, Parliamentarian; Mrs. Howe, Historian.

Miss Roussell, District President, officiated at the installation and at its closing presented Mrs. Lillian Fletcher, outgoing president, with a past president pin given by the association in appreciation of Mrs. Fletcher's unceasing efforts on behalf of the P. T. A. during the past year.

In an address by Mr. Savage, District School Superintendent, he said that children who are taught to respect their superiors and teachers grow up to be law respecting and praiseworthy men and women. Mr. Savage stressed the importance of early training in the real fundamentals of education.

In closing he congratulated Mrs. Lillian Fletcher and the members of the P. T. A. on their success in the past year and extended his best wishes to the association for the coming year. MRS. E. F. DESKINS.

POSTPONE ACTION ON FOUR PROJECTS

At the meeting of the San Mateo county board of supervisors in Redwood City last Monday, action in four important projects now before the board was postponed until next month.

Formation of the Millbrae Villa water district for fire protection and domestic purposes was delayed when Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey informed the board that the present petition of Millbrae property owners is not in proper form. It will be taken up on May 5.

The North Fair Oaks sanitary sewer district project, which has brought several heated controversies, was also laid over until May 5.

Readvertising for bids for general improvements in Menalto Park, subdivision between Menlo Park and Palo Alto, was ordered. The bids will be opened May 12.

Appointment of a new fire commissioner to fill the vacancy on the Belmont board of fire commissioners was postponed to May 5, when the board learned that William Elwood Curtis, who has been recommended for the post by petition, requested his name be dropped.

Formation of the Pescadero lighting district was the other important matter continued. Action will be taken May 12.

Application was made by the Natural Gas Corporation of California for a franchise to supply natural gas to residents of Half Moon Bay and Pescadero on the coastside. W. F. Williamson, Wallace & Vaughn, attorney firm of San Francisco, represented the applicant. The board will consider granting the gas franchise at the meeting on May 6.

Ellen Biber, executive secretary of the San Mateo county social service commission, was granted permission to represent this county at the twenty-second annual meeting of the California Conference of Social Work, to be held at Santa Barbara May 13 to 17.

County Recorder T. C. Rice was granted a ten-day leave of absence from the state.

A petition for repairing of the road bounding Emerald Lake No. 1 in the Emerald Lake subdivision west of Redwood City resulted in the ordering of plans and specifications by the county engineer.

Returns of the special election on the formation of the Emerald Lake county fire district were filed with the board and an order declaring the district formed, passed.

Appointment of fire commissioners for the new district was to be considered by the Oak Knoll Improvement club and the board will be advised of selections at the next meeting.

THE REAL SPIRIT OF CO-OPERATION

A misguided optimist once said, "The word 'competition' should never have been invented. 'Co-operation' is the right word for every occasion every time. Competition is wrong—co-operation is the thing."

He was wrong in not believing that competition is worth while, but ruthless competition with no regard for the spirit of co-operation, is wrong. That is why the word co-operation came into being and the spirit of co-operation into practice.

Without competition, co-operation will not develop. With competition and co-operation mixed, we all do better. Competition today brings about co-operation.

For the competition is community competition. It is not the man down the street in the same line of business who is our competitor. It is the man in the same business in the next town. And co-operation with our "competitor" down the street makes the competition of the man in the next town less powerful.

We are living in an age which requires community co-operation, wholehearted co-operation on the part of every civic force—business, industrial, religious, educational, social, fraternal and citizenship.

Do we realize this? And do we practice it? What is the particularly bad practice or practices which are retarding the development of Daly City? Are we cutting into each other's line of business, or are we cutting unwisely and unscrupulously into each others' margin of profit? Or are we withholding our support for civic enterprises, community building enterprises, religious and educational projects?

Are we building up a better "Service Center" and assuring future prosperity for ourselves?

We must meet this challenge—we must link the surrounding country and town into a Greater Community. This can be done through every citizen lending whole-hearted co-operation. No matter how well the leaders may chart the course, no matter how much effort some few of our fellow citizens may place behind the movement for a greater community—the success can only be achieved through the co-operation of the entire community.

Today we cannot boast of the size of our community, when we stop to compare it to the population centers of the world. Nor can we hope to reach such a size during the next decade. But there is a goal that Daly City can achieve, and that is TO BE THE BEST COMMUNITY OF ITS SIZE IN THESE UNITED STATES!

To achieve this end in face of the competition of other communities will require the co-operation of all of the citizens of Daly City.

DALY CITY RESIDENT VISITOR AT CAPITAL

Daly City was well represented when the sessions of the thirty-eighth Associate Council of the National Society United States Daughters of 112 were formally opened at the Willard Hotel in Washington, D. C., on Monday night by President General Mrs. Samuel Z. Shope, of Philadelphia, Pa. This state has three chapters in various cities.

The pre-Council sessions included a most interesting Memorial Service on Sunday afternoon in honor of deceased members under the direction of Mrs. W. S. Shaw, Chaplain National of South Portland, Maine, together with an informal open house at the National headquarters on Monday afternoon which was attended by the three hundred delegates.

The Monday evening services were patriotic services including the Recognition of the Real Daughters, presentation of state flags and an address by City Commissioner Thomas E. Clemens of Philadelphia.

Among the Real Daughters of the society are included Mrs. William R. Ross, 7 Cloverdale street, Daly City.

Tuesday's sessions included routine committee reports, the afternoon concluding with the entire society being received at the White House at 4:30 o'clock. In the evening was scheduled the annual banquet, with Honorable Hamilton Fish, Jr., congressman from New York, and Brigadier General Guy V. Henry, Chief of Cavalry U. S. Army, as the speakers.

HLLCREST CIRCLE ENTERTAINS

Hillcrest Circle, U. A. O. D., entertained the state grand officers on Monday evening, April 14, at Masonic Hall, Daly City. Nellie B. Collins, Grand Arch Druidess, was escorted into the Circle by an honorary escort. They were dressed in evening gowns of pastel shades and wore wristlets of rosebuds matching the beautiful basket of roses presented by our own Arch Druidess Madaline Fellows to the State Arch Druidess while entering the Circle. Mrs. McNair sang "A Love Gift of Roses." The drill team initiated twenty new members in a most perfect manner. Arch Druidess Madaline Fellows was a great credit to her mother and father, who are both members of the Circle, and to Hillcrest Circle itself, and to the whole Druidic order. Caroline Blair, Past Arch Druidess and Captain of the drill team, was very proud of the work done by the officers, and all the grand officers paid the Circle a very high compliment on their first anniversary. After the meeting the visitors and members were seated at tables laden with good things, and the officers enjoyed a large birthday cake provided by the Circle. Every one enjoyed the evening. The committee is to be complimented on the fine manner in which they handled the large crowd attending this memorable occasion. We must not forget to mention that Nellie B. Collins, Grand Arch Druidess and Deputy Caroline Blair received gifts from the Circle, and to make the affair complete, our dear Professor W. J. Savage made the speech of the evening, and it was a gem. We all hope to have many more evenings at Hillcrest Circle. Mrs. G. Gehringer was the musician.

CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH HAS INTERESTING TOPICS

The Rev. Charles Woessner, Pastor of the Calvary Baptist Chapel, will preach both morning and evening.

The morning sermon will be "What Shall I Let Go?" and in the evening "A Supreme Question Supremely Answered."

One man writes that a city without church-goers would be like a railroad without engines — nothing to make it go. A neighborhood in which no church people lived might not be a very desirable section of town. Half of the population would be afraid of the other half. It would be a place where might makes right. How would you like to live in a place like that? Is it too much to say that those who have not time for church are doing all they can to bring about such conditions? That is what neglect amounts to. Calvary Baptist Chapel is doing its utmost to make Daly City a better place to live in. It has accepted a full view of its mission in the community. The services are planned with a view to give every one a satisfaction that they came. Miss Madie Irons is now in charge of the choir. If you enjoy good singing you will not be disappointed in her excellent programs. Come and worship with us and make Daly City a beter place to live in. If you are without a church home, Calvary Chapel welcomes you into her midst.

By tapping the cable where it passes close to the northern coast of Guernsey, direct telephone connection could be established between England and the Channel Islands at a reasonable cost.

COLMA MAN KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

W. J. Colombo, aged 40, a Colma resident, was killed instantly on the Golden State highway near Livingston last Friday night in a highway accident involving a roadster and two trucks.

Colombo's body was severed in two when the rear end of the roadster, in which he was a rumble-seat passenger, driven by Mario Possi, of San Francisco, was caught between two trucks. Possi attempted to pass a northbound Reedley truck and failed to see a Fresno-bound truck, according to the report made by the drivers of the trucks to officers. The rear half of Possi's car was crushed between the two trucks. No one else was hurt in the accident.

WAR VETERANS ARE GIVEN TAX RELIEF

Approximately 165,000 world war veterans in California have been relieved of the payment of taxes for 1929 on property valued at $102,223,952, according to a report made to State Adjutant James K. Fisk of the American Legion by Secretary Dixwell L. Pierce of the State Board of Equalization. Tax exemptions are allowed under the constitutional amendment passed in 1911. The exemptions were granted by the County Assessors in the fifty-eight counties of the State. Los Angeles county veterans with total exemptions of $39,649,205 top the list and little Alpine county with exemptions of $1,830 is at the bottom.

The Board of Equalization reports that the number allowed exemption has not grown so rapidly as the value of the property exempted. The increase of the valuation of exempt property in 1929 over 1928 is 7.61 per cent. In 1928 the total of $94,992,007 was 13.22 per cent more than the corresponding figure for 1927.

"JUMPING FROG" FESTIVAL IN CHARGE OF VETERANS

World war veterans of Angels Camp, Calaveras county, who are sponsoring the annual "Jumping Frog" contest in the Mother Lode community made famous by Mark Twain, will be organized into a Post of the American Legion Saturday night, April 26, with state officials of the Legion attending. The new Post will, hereafter, sponsor the "Jumping Frog" tournament, which brings visitors to this interesting event from all parts of the state.

JEFFERSON PRESENTS COMEDY OF BOARDERS

By LILLIAN DUNBAR

"Folks at Miss Emma's boarding house
Are kind at heart, though somewhat blunt;
And every night with wagging tongles
They gossip in the First Floor Front."

The above ballad will be the theme song to the play, "The First Floor Front", to be presented by the Dramatics class of the Jefferson Union high school Wednesday, April 30, at 8:30 o'clock in the school auditorium.

The play is a mystery-comedy in three acts, and will give many a laugh and thrill to the audience.

The characters themselves are enough to produce laughter. There is Nell Bailey, a stenographer, who portrays modern girls in a most delightful way, and whose part will be taken by Maxine Slaght; Arthur Newman, a young dentist who ardently admires Nell, and who is personated by Edgar Hooton; Miss Annie Conover, a school teacher, who just loves to hear about the latest gossip, and she will be played by Mildred Franklin; Lisa Layton, an art teacher, who seems bored to tears unless there's an interesting man in sight, and whose part is portrayed by Evelyn Hanschen.

Then there is Jeffery Jordon, a small-town lawyer whose life ambition is to be mistaken for a New York clubman. The part is artfully played by Herman Kalinin. Mr. Beckwith is a middle-aged bookkeeper continually henpecked by his wife, Mrs Beckwith, a woman who talks incessantly about her indigestion and her life in Philadelphia. This couple is interpreted by Edward Gregor and Irene Smith.

Bertram Black, in the person of Woodrow Olson, owns the local hardware store, and is continually harping about it; Horace Hall, portrayed by John Muller, is a drugstore clerk who thinks himself the life of the party, but who really is a bore; Miss Emma Martin, whose part is played by Nona Mellish, is the landlady; Peter Pendleton, the new boarder from New York (Billie Jaques) is very coolheaded, to the consternation of the curious; Eleitta Williams, as Jane Martin, is Miss Emma's orphan niece; and the part of the policeman is played by Hugh Smith.

The plot centers in a boarding house in Hohnsburg, where the boarders are wondering about a newcomer, and why he has taken the first floor front. Miss Emma has tried to rent this room for a long time, but was unsuccessful, because her Uncle Ebenezer had died there. Before he died he told her that some money was hidden, but he expired before he could say where.

The new boarder arrives, and is discussed and pulled apart by the other boarders. Jeffrey Jordon immediately dislikes him and begins to think of some way to hurt him. The stranger says he is there to write ballads of boarding house life for some syndicate people, but all do not believe this.

Some money disappears from Bertram's room, and soon after that a neaby bank is robbed. Peter appears next day, seeming to be "flush" with his money, and Jordon tries to cast suspicion on him.

Did he or didn't he take the money? What was his real object in coming to Johnsburg? Where was the money Uncle Ebenezer had left to Miss Emma?

All these and other questions in your mind will be answered if you attend the play and see how these mysteries vanish. Admission is 25 cents and tickets may be purchased at the door or from members of the dramatics class.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. Edward's Drug Store, Mission street, near San Jose avenue.

Division terminal of the Pickwick Stages system is to be moved from Redding to Red Bluff in a short time.

With 18,764 voters registered in Contra Costa County since January 1, according to figures announced at Martinez by County Clerk J. H. Wells, new efforts are being made to roll up a heavy early registration. O. K. Discovery of a tribe of Indians who speak a language unknown to science, was announced at Los Angeles by Dr. James A. B. Scherer, director of the Southwest Museum. The discovery was made by Dr. A. L. Kroeber, head of the department of anthropology of the University of California on the joint expedition of the museum and the university into northern Mexico. The tribe is the Huarejia, intermediate between the Maya and the Tarahumara. Dr. Kroeber visited the Seri tribe, which is said to be the most primitive in North America. The Seri live on Tiburon Island in the Gulf of California and the adjacent mainland. Surface examination of prehistoric sites and remains made by the expedition indicated that Sinaloa anciently was a last outpost of Central Mexican culture, Dr. Scherer said.

That 1930 will prove the greatest travel year from California to Canada was predicted by E. R. Desbrisay, passenger expert of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Judging from early season records, Desbrisay declared: "Passenger traffic from southern Canada to California has so far this year been heavier than usual, despite depression brought on by the crop depressions of the Northwest. A large increase in paved highways will tend to induce greater motor traffic during the summer months." Two new coastwise ships will enter the company's service this summer on their arrival from English shipyards.

Traffic experts throughout the State are interested in the experiment being conducted at the Hopkins avenue crossing of the Southern Pacific lines at Campbell, Santa Clara County. The railroad company has installed a flashing light signal to warn motorists of approaching trains. This is the first signal of its type to be set up in California, though the signal is generally used throughout the East. The Railroad Commission authorized the installation of the flashing light signal at that point. If it meets all the requirements of the commission this form of safety signal will, eventually, supplant the wigwag signals that have been generally used throughout the State.

Word was received from the office of Secretary of War Hurley to the effect that an additional allotment of $450,000 for construction of the Stockton deep water channel had been made. This makes a total of $975,000 which the government has set aside as immediately available for channel dredging. City Manager Walter B. Hogan expects the federal government to call for additional bids for further dredging shortly.

With an estimated production double that reported when the well first was first brought in last September at 6673 feet, the Standard Oil Company's well No. 81 at Coalinga was brought in again recently, this time at a depth of 7035 feet. Officials said the well would flow 3500 barrels of oil per day and about 85,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

Widening and deepening of the Napa River above Vallejo, as a means to commercial navigation, is seriously considered by the War Department, according to notice issued by Major E. H. Ropes, First California District United States Engineers. Plans call for a channel seventy-five feet wide with four-foot depth at low tide. The width is increased at Jacks and Car Bends and Spreckels and Horseshoe Points.

A new American fighting ship—the sleek grey and red 100,000-ton cruiser Chicago—was launched following colorful christening ceremonies at the Mare Island Navy Yard. One of eight cruisers authorized by Congress eight years ago, the Chicago went into the water while whistles of scores of ships in Mare Island channel sounded lustily and cheers went up from 10,000 throats. The Chicago was christened by Miss Elizabeth Britton of San Francisco, sister of Congressman Fred Britton of Illinois.

With householders and business establishments signing up and requesting natural gas for home and business use, representatives of the Southern California Gas Company, who have been working in the Delano district, believe that this new service will be available in homes there within a short time. Work is already under way on a high-pressure line which will bring gas from a point east of Rio Bravo northerly to Delano by way of Wasco, Shafter and MacFarland. Laying of distribution systems in these towns will begin at the earliest possible date, according to W. C. Cameron, local manager for the company.

San Francisco was named as headquarters for one of the largest motor coach transportation companies in the United States when articles of incorporation were filed in Sacramento with Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan by the Pacific Greyhound Lines Inc. According to Earl A. Bagby, general counsel for Pickwick Stages System and affiliated companies, Pacific Greyhound Lines Inc. will absorb the leading motor coach systems now operating in California. The companies which will be consolidated include the Pickwick Stages System, California Transit Company, Peninsula Rapid Transit Company, Pacific Auto Stages, Golden Gate Stages, Pacific Coast Motor Coach Company, Kern County Transportation Company, Southern Pacific Motor Transport Company and the Calistoga and Clear Lakes Stage Company.

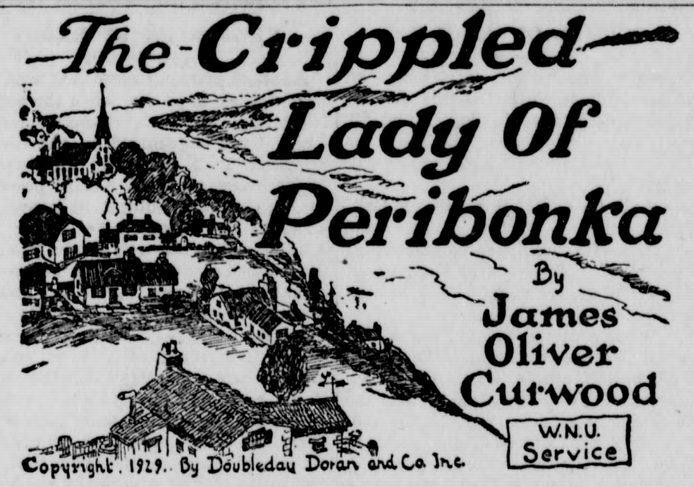
That California, and especially the northern section of the State, is rapidly becoming one of the steel centers of the United States is strikingly shown by the fact that steel, iron, and allied products valued in excess of $1,216,596,000 have been produced here since 1927. Fourteen California steel works and rolling mills in 1929 gave employment to more than 5000 workers whose wages amounted to $7,678,377. The total value of products produced by these plants was in excess of $24,527,552, according to a recent survey made by the State Chamber of Commerce. The value of products produced by the steel, iron and allied groups has been estimated at approximately $405,532,000 yearly since 1927. The growth of steel works and rolling mills in California has been exceedingly rapid and the last two years have witnessed large expansions in northern California involving millions of dollars.

Distance from Dinuba to Visalia Airport would be cut to fourteen miles through a propsed new road, which will be sumbitted to the Tulare County Board of Supervisors, according to County Supervisor T. Wayne Switzer. This road would be an extension of a road running directly south from Dinuba. Right-of-way would have to be condemned through various properties on the southern end of the route. George Smith of Visalia, R. H. Callison of Dinuba and Switzer have been named to make the inspection and report on feasibility of the project. A petition for opening of the road was filed three months ago, but was considered then as a neighborhood convenience. Investigation revealed that Dinuba residents would have to go only fourteen miles to reach Visalia Airport, and that trucking lines would be able to use the new route as a direct entrance into Alta district.

The road has been cleared for reclamation of Islais Creek. Superior Judge Kirk Mahan of Yuba County, overruled the sole objection to the validity of the Islais Creek Reclamation District bonds. William Whittley, owner of a small piece of property in the district, argued that recent fills at the expense of the city had changed the financial setup.

A fee of $12,500 was paid to Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan by the Union Oil Company of California for the privilege of renewing its corporate existence for fifty years. The company is capitalized at $125,000,000.

The Crippled Lady Of Peribonka



By James Oliver Curwood

W.N.U. Service

Copyright, 1929, By Doubleday Doran and Co. Inc.

STORY FROM THE START

Introducing some of the people of the pretty little French-Canadian village of Peribonka, particularly the Crippled Lady, idol of the simple inhabitants. Paul Kirke is a descendant of a sister of Molly Brant, sister of Joseph Brant, great Indian chief. He has inherited many Indian characteristics. His father is a powerful New York financier. Paul marries Claire Durand, daughter of his father's partner. He is in charge of engineering work near Peribonka. Paul's wife is in Europe. She dislikes the woods. Paul becomes interested in Carla, village teacher. Paul writes his wife to join him. Carla's mother, long an invalid, dies. Claire announces her intention of joining Paul on the Mistassini. She writes a letter of sympathy to Carla. Paul becomes aware of a gulf between him and his wife. Paul, Claire, Carla and two friends make up a luncheon party to visit the "Big Gorge" of the Mistassini. Paul and Carla carry a large log to the edge of the rushing water.

"I've a notion to ride this log through the gorge!" exclaimed Lucy-Belle. "I want to know what is under and between those walls which you say no one has ever explored, Colin. What do you suppose can be there?"

"An inferno of devils, I imagine," replied her husband.

"Possibly not. Fairies might live there," suggested Claire.

"A black and sunless place where lovely water maids without eyes frolic in the darkness," added Paul.

"Or a kingdom of Micomicon, where dreams are made and sent out into the world," said Carla.

Derwent was preparing his end of the log for a final heave. "I insist it is a place of devils and death. Still, like Lucy-Belle, I'd like to see what's there. After all, it's fifty million years of—mystery! Are you ready, Paul?"

"Ready!"

The log pitched down, and as it went the end of it swung like a living thing and struck Paul. Even before the blow—in the lightning flash of time when eyes behind could see it sweeping upon him—a sudden scream filled his consciousness, and as the timber caught him he saw it was Claire whose cry had tried to warn him. Then he was over. With photographic clearness his eyes beheld his fate. The water seemed to reach up and catch him on its oily breast, and for a brief instant after this there was a sensation not unpleasing about its hold. For some unaccountable reason he felt no sense of fear or terror even when forces that were irresistible but gentle pulled him down. He knew it was death, the death they had played with and lightly talked about, yet its presence closing about him did not rob his mind of its vision and judgment, nor frighten him into senseless wrestling with it. He would come up again, alive, near the jagged tooth of rock; after that would be his end, and in such an hour as this seconds became eternities of life. His wife, Carla, Lucy-Belle, and Derwent were still nearer to him than the final stroke of death; he would see them, especially Claire and Carla, when he looked back in those few moments of grace which the monster of the undertows would give him. These two, and the supreme faith which had wrought a comradeship between him and all the forces of Nature, gave him, instinctively and without effort, the courage not to be afraid.

The undercurrent's indraughts and refluxes carried him with a quiet and deliberate leisureliness, which gave him no physical discomfort except that of holding his breath. Yet they were so powerful, so utterly sure in their grip, that when he made an experimental effort to reach the surface it was as if he were struggling against a wooden wall. To save the air in his lungs he restrained himself from further exertion, and when, at last, he came up near the rock, and felt fresh air in his face, he had suffered no greater inconvenience than if he had taken a long dive. His first thought was of the log, his second of the granite snag. Against this, after a moment, he felt himself being slowly lifted, and throwing out his hands he was thrilled by the fibrous, slimy touch of a rope-like substance which had gathered thickly about it just under the surface of the water. River weeds and flag had wrapped themselves in a tough belt about the rock, and so firmly had they attached themselves to it that he knew they would, for a time at least, hold up his weight from the sucking undertow which was already beginning to drag at his limbs.

He looked toward the cliff and raised one hand to wave at the four who stood there. With the distance, and the water in his eyes, he could not make out which was Claire or Carla or Lucy-Belle. But something told him it was his wife who stood nearest to the edge, with her arms reaching out toward him.

And then, on the cliff, one woman said to another: "Are you going with him?"

The woman spoken to gazed wide-eyed—motionless—voiceless—and after a moment of tense waiting the other said: "Then—I am!"

CHAPTER VIII

Paul saw the swift, deliberate plunge through space of the slim body, which, in the uncertainty of his vision, an instinctive and positive impulse told him was Claire's. A woman's piercing cry came from the cliff, but no responsive echo of horror escaped his own lips, no sound, but an articulate gasp as the figure struck the water and disappeared. An appalling and devastating weakness seized upon him, a deadly sickness of shock, a thing that loosened the grip of his fingers from the clinging belt of weeds and made him limply impotent against the dragging force of the undertow. For an instant his brain reeled in darkness. He began to go down, easily and slowly, as if the cruel and murderous hands below were fearful of arousing the inertness to which he had momentarily succumbed. Then water struck into his face and startled him. Heart and brain leaped in response to its warning, and he thrust up wildly and caught the weeds again. They hung closely to the rock, allowing him to drag his body up until his shoulders were out of water once more. He heard Derwent shout, as if from a mile away, but he paid no attention to the cry, nor did he look toward the cliff. The thought in his mind was that Claire would be with him in another moment or two. She would come to the surface near the rock, and he must be ready to seize and hold her with him until the weeds gave way—or a miracle happened.

Five or six feet from him, where the water was like a pool of oil that had no motion, a little disturbance suddenly flecked its surface—a change of light, a drifting up of something intangible and shadowy, a nebulous blotch which changed under his eyes to substance, a floating mass of hair. The sun was shining, the water was almost black, but there was no glint of gold in what he saw. The hair was dark. Carla's face became a part of it in a moment. It seemed to him that the monsters who lived about the rock held her up for him, with a smile on her lips and in her eyes, her face toward him and her arms reaching out. He was half in a daze, and might have fancied some of the things he saw. But Carla was there. She, not his wife, had come to join him in death. The quiet, terrible drama of it held him from calling her name as he waited for her to come within his reach. But the undertow brought her no nearer. For a second, two of them, three or four, it held her away from him, and each of these seconds was a lifetime in passing. Then he saw the distance between them widening, and as it widened the things below began to drag Carla down. She made no struggle, did not cry out to him, but only raised her hands so that he might see they were waiting for him, and wanting him, as she went to her kingdom of Micomicon, her land of dreams.

Seeing Big League BASEBALL

By BILLY EVANS

Sportswriter, Big League Umpire and General Manager of the Cleveland Indians

During my twenty-two years as an American League umpire I have worked consecutive shut-out performances, hitless games and extra inning contests. I have officiated in games featured by record breaking strike-outs. Yet none of these performances made the impression on me that a world series game pitched by Herb Pennock in 1923 did. It was a pitching classic as relating to courageous hurling.

In the first place it was the third meeting between the two New York clubs in a world series. The Giants had won both previous clashes, despite the fact that the Yankees got away to a two-game lead in the first meeting. When the two clubs met for the third time, the Giants went into the series a strong favorite. In the two previous series McGraw's pitchers had stopped Ruth, and the Yankees' much vaunted hurling staff had failed to hold the Giants in check.

At this stage of the hostilities Herb Pennock, slim southpaw, looking more like a high school boy than an experienced big leaguer, entered the arena. The first game of the 1923 series was a repetition of other world series games between the two clubs. The Yanks got away to a three-run lead, which the Giants overcame; then the Giants in turn were tied, only to win by a home-run in the ninth by the veteran, Casey Stengel, little considered in doping out the series.

The sixth game was unquestionably the crucial spot of the series; the Yanks were leading three games to two. The late Miller Huggins entrusted the Yankees hopes in the care of Pennock, despite the fact that he had relieved Shawkey in the eighth inning of the fourth game with the bases filled, stopping a big Giant rally. McGraw's club had to win or pass out of the picture.

In the first inning a home run by Ruth staked Pennock to a one-run lead. He wasn't to hold it long. Three hits in the Giants half evened the count. Two hits gave the Giants a run and sent McGraw's club to the front in the fourth. In the next inning a home run by Frank Snyder, who had not previously made a hit in the series, increased the Giants' margin. In the sixth Frisch's triple, plus a single, added another count

Throughout the game Pennock had been batted hard by the Giants, much more solidly than the ten hits show. Realizing he didn't have his stuff, Pennock matched wits with every batter, depending on his great control to help him out. As a result he was constantly in trouble. Often with the count three and two he was forced to take a chance and "groove" the next pitch. As a result any number of hard hit drives resulted, but always they seemed to go directly into the hands of a Yankee fielder.

Yet, during all the bombardment, all the tough breaks, Pennock never once faltered. It is easy to pitch when you are out in front, but to keep giving your best when your stuff is being batted hard, is another matter.

The break of the game came in the eighth inning, when Nehf, who had held the Yanks to two hits, suddenly lost control. After allowing two hits he passed the next two men on eight pitched balls. That was enough for Nehf, thought McGraw. He was relieved by Ryan, who also was wild. Before the inning was over the Yankees had made five runs, enough to win the game 6 to 4 and capture the series.

Pennock's pitching in the sixth and deciding game of the 1923 world series will always stand out as the most courageous, the greatest pitching performance I have ever seen. He came from behind to win after being apparently out of the running.

THE OCEAN

David noticed a great confusion. He was taking a trip and was now at the tip-most southern point of Africa.

It was all ocean in front of the Cape of Good Hope, and yet the ocean was being so very, very excited, even for an ocean.

But it was not just one ocean. Instead, here, the Atlantic and Indian oceans were meeting, and they were talking.

"Hello, Indian Ocean."

"Hello, Atlantic Ocean."

"How do you feel?"

"In the best of spirits. How do you feel?"

"Splendidly."

"I reach up to the southern coast of Asia. I reach over to Australia. I like long stretches."

"That's nothing. I reach over to North and South America. I know something about Europe, too."

Each boasted to the other.

"You can't go so very far in a map way without meeting an ocean," roared Atlantic.

"Poor old land," said Indian ocean, "we have more say than it has."

"Far down in my great ocean the water is dark and still—but I'm gay on top," cried Atlantic.

"Just the way it is with me."

"Hello, Atlantic, I know you," called

Each Boasted to the Other

David. He tried hard to make his voice sound above the noise.

But Atlantic was too busy to notice David now as he was talking to the Indian Ocean, and as David stood there with the mighty Cape of Good Hope, and the two oceans before him, he felt so small in the midst of such strength and power. But soon along came Wind, and he felt more himself again, even though Wind looked pretty excited, too.

"You could have gone up the west coast of Africa and have seen Liberia, a small republic with great rubber plantations," Wind said, "or you could have seen the Gulf of Guinea up there which is so important, and yet which is obliging enough to take the time and trouble to bring moist air to the warm continent, and rain to the coast.

"But you can't see everything. Jump into my airship—the first of all ships, and we'll be off for Australia.

"Australia is waiting to see you."

And again it seemed to David how wonderfully they had arranged it all, a spread-out map, a spread-out world, that gave him such an idea of the proportions of everything and yet was made convenient for his getting about. They did know how to fix maps and living maps and magic maps in this map world.

And all of the places were just like individual characters.

"To be sure you could go up over the Indian Ocean to Asia, but directly east is Australia, and Australia is expecting you," Wind said.

David had often thought he would like to see Australia. Now he was going there—and more than that—he was expected!

Curfew for English Town

In olden days a bell was rung soon after sunset signifying that it was time for people to put out their fires and go to bed, and that this ringing was known as the Curfew. The origin of this custom is rather doubtful, but it is thought that it was probably introduced by William the Conqueror, and was doubtlessly intended to prevent fires occurring—most of the dwelling places then being constructed of wood.

During Henry's reign, however, this idea was abolished, and since then it has become one of the quaint old customs of the past. Now, however, Poole a town in England has decided to go back to these days, and ring a curfew every evening at eight o'clock! I wonder if everybody in Poole will obey the original summons of this old bell and hasten off to bed at this early hour?

It seems decidedly unlikely!

Scouts Plant Trees

Over a million trees were planted last year by boy scouts in various states. Projects under way would indicate that this record will be surpassed the coming season. The largest single tree planting project is at Gray's Harbor, Wash., where 100 boy scouts are planting 100,000 fir trees on a tract of land near Olympic national forest. Boy scouts of New Jersey will plant 3,000 evergreen trees each year for ten years at their boy scout camp.

THE LONDON PARLEY

As this is written it appears that the London conference on naval limitation has not been a very great success. Perhaps it has done no harm, but it is difficult to see in its work any very large measure of accomplishment.

It also appears from the result of the recent Republican primary in Illinois that the American people are still adverse to mixing very much in international politics.

The preponderance of American opinion seems to be that our best security lies in a friendly attitude toward the rest of the world, while maintaining our own independence of action in matters of foreign policy.

At London all the old manifestations of national jealousy and distrust cropped out anew. Delegates from each nation have been looking out for their own country's interests, as they had a right to do. National interests are bound to conflict from time to time, and about the best that can be hoped for is that in times of crisis the parties concerned may keep their heads and endeavor to work out peaceful solutions of their differences.

History has amply proved that written treaties and agreements alone can not be depended upon to prevent war. Peace or war depends largely upon the attitude of the particular statesmen who happen to be in power in their respective countries when causes of friction arise.

The expression "everything is jake" doesn't apply after imbibing a few jake cocktails.

BETTER CARE OF FOODS

One of the most revolutionary developments in food merchandising since the advent of canning is described in a recent statement by the foodstuffs division of the Department of Commerce. It is the quick-freezing process of preserving fruits, vegetables and fresh-cut meats to be sold in package form.

With meats, for instance, the new system calls for butchering the carcass immediately into individual cuts, which are frozen solid to 50 degrees below zero. Thus foods may be brought to the consumer with weight, flavor, texture and appearance unchanged. The effectiveness of this new method is also vouched for by C. U. Williams, a leading authority on refrigeration, who declares that this is only a part of the nation-wide trend toward the better preservation of all foodstuffs. Explaining further, he said:

"The housewife obtains the necessary degree of refrigeration with the ice machine that gives her temperatures of 34 to 48 degrees. Iceomatic cares of foods in the homes rounds out the precautions taken by packers and food manufacturers, so that the modern housewife is able to buy more advantageously and to safeguard health by using only well-kept foods."

That these ideas are practical is indicated by the fact that the patent rights to one new quick-freezing process have been sold for $23,000,000. A pretty good day's work for the fellow who thought it up.

Radio has done much toward popularizing many things. Including the letters K and W.

ECLIPSE ON APRIL 28

Those who enjoy watching an eclipse should have their smoked glasses ready for Monday, April 28, when the only eclipse of the sun to be visible in America this year will occur.

It will be total in parts of California, Oregon, Nevada, Idaho and Montana, and nearly so in other portions of the Northwest. Throughout the rest of the country it will be seen as a partial eclipse.

In states using Pacific time the eclipse will begin about 9:40 A. M., in Mountain states about 11 A. M., Central states about 12:30 P. M., and Eastern states about 2 P. M., according to their respective times.

An eclipse of the sun is caused by the moon coming between the earth and the sun, while an eclipse of the moon occurs when the earth gets directly between the sun and the moon. Because of the irregular motions of the moon, exactness in predicting the time of an eclipse involves a highly complicated mathematical problem.

Yet modern astronomers do predict them within from one to four seconds of their actual time of occurrence and these predictions can be made 100 years or more in advance if desired.

PRAISES U. S. PAPERS

American newspapers are more progressive than European in newsgathering and business methods, according to Dr. Wilhelm Girardet, publisher of a chain of newspapers in the German steel cities who was recently interviewed in New York. He said:

"You use three or four times as many reporters as we and your editorials are reduced to admirably simple terms. German editors devote much space to politics which is always the most important subject in our country."

Regarding some of our American conditions and habits Dr. Girardet is not so enthusiastic. He thinks New York has too many skyscrapers and too few parks. It was inevitable that he should touch upon the drink problem of which he says:

"I notice far more smoking and drinking among American women than among my own people. Another thing, I cannot help noticing that you drink too much coffee. Germany is the home of the 'kaffeeklatsch,' but we don't abuse coffee. I drink it in decaffeinated form, which is genuine coffee but does not keep me awake at night and does not have a harmful effect upon my nerves."

Speaking of unemployment, which presents a difficult problem in Germany, Dr. Girardet says that they give jobs first to men, and if a married man is employed they do not employ his wife. They first try to give a job to one person in each family.

So, while the noted publisher expects to profit by his observation of American newspapers, he feels that in some other respects teh Germans employ better methods than ours. Anyway, his observations are interesting, whether we agree with him or not.

STANFORD AXE IS HOME

Joy reigned at Stanford University a few weeks ago, when its famous axe, historic emblem and mascot, was returned home after being held a "prisoner" by the University of California for thirty-one years.

At a football game in 1899 the axe was stolen by California students and carried away as a prize of war. Since then it has been kept in a vault at the Berkeley institution, only to be brought forth as the central object in California's annual "axe rally."

This year's rally was attended by three young men posing as newspaper reporters, but who were really Stanford students. At an opportune moment they seized the prized axe and setting off a tear bomb to cover their flight carried the trophy triumphantly back to Stanford.

The students who executed this brilliant exploit will doubtless receive medals of honor, or whatever badges of distinction Stanford confers on her most valiant sons.

QUIZZING THE KIDS

In order to determine something or other, professors of Columbia University recently questioned 512 boys between the ages of six and seven years.

When asked what they wanted to be when they grew up, only five signified a desire to be President of the United States. And only six had heard of Mr. Hoover.

There were several boys named Calvin among those tested, but they did not appear to know very much about their namesake.

Most of them thought the career of policemen or firemen would be more desirable than any other.

It is hoped that the learned professors found out what they were trying to find out.

An inquiring reporter asks: "What kind of a husband does a wife miss the most?" The little fellows are more difficult targets.

"The Silent Women of America" is the name of a new national organization. Strangely enough, it is not composed of deaf-mutes.

NEWSPAPER BY RADIO

Another amazing radio feat was recorded a few days ago when the entire front page of a San Francisco newspaper was transmitted on the air to Schenectady, N. Y., 2,500 miles away.

Transmission was made possible through sending equipment known as a facsimile transmitter devised by Dr. Alexanderson, the well known pioneer in television work, and a recording machine developed by C. J. Young, son of Owen D. Young of General Electric.

For recording, a roll of paper eight inches wide was used, the three strips required being pasted together afterward. Photographic copies of the radio page have been printed in several newspapers and show that the transmission was practically perfect.

Radio engineers predict that some day this means of disseminating news may become quite common, and that the pages of newspapers may be displayed on a screen in the home by means of an attachment to the family radio set.

HOPE FOR BLIND GIRL

Endowed with a wonderful soprano voice, but seemingly denied an operatic career because of blindness since she was six years old, new hope has come to Ruth Hammerquist, of Chicago, now 14.

Her remarkable voice was brought to the attention of Cyrena Van Gordon of the Chicago Civic Opera Company by a music supervisor in the school for the blind which Ruth attends. The opera star agreed that the girl's voice had operatic possibilities, and had her eyes examined by Dr. S. Bogert Munns, who expressed the belief that her sight might be restored, and placed her under treatment.

Whether this hope shall be realized can not be determined for some time, but it is likely that through Miss Van Gordon's interest she may have an opportunity on the concert stage, even though her blindness can not be overcome.

Miss Van Gordon's many admirers throughout the country will be pleased to know of her generous action and will be interested in the progress of her gifted protege.

MAY SEE AND HEAR OVER THE TELEPHONE

Two-way television, to supplement the usual two-way telephone, permitting parties to see as well as hear each other, was demonstrated a few days ago in New York by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, according to advice received by Manager Lyle M. Brown of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company.

An experimental service between the telephone company's building at 195 Broadway and the Bell Telephone Laboratories at 463 West street, which has been in operation for some time, was disclosed and demonstrated to representatives of the press.

Following the demonstration, statements were made by Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Company, and Frank B. Jewett, vice-president of the company and president of the Bell Laboratories.

Mr. Gifford said, in part:

"The demonstration today by Bell Telephone Laboratories, of simultaneous television and speech, shows some of the results obtained from our continued work in the television field. At the time of the initial demonstration of television by the American Company, in April 1927, it was stated that we would continue our work in television. Partial results of this work were shown in the demonstration of our out-of-door television in 1928 and of color television in June 1929.

"The equipment which has been installed for operation over telephone wires between our buildings in West street and in Broadway, shows what it is possible to do technically in the present state of the art in eliminating the element of distance as affecting sight and sound in the matter of telephone conversations. This can be accomplished over any distance where suitable telephone channels, either wire or radio, are available.

"While substantial progress has been made on the technical side, the future commercial possibilities of television are still uncertain. In line with our policy of exploring and developing every field which gives promise of possible improvements in and extension of electrical communication, we expect to continue our work in television."

STAYS AT SWITCHBOARD IN SPITE OF ADVANCING FLAMES

Mrs. Beryl McClary, of Los Angeles, a telephone operator and daughter-in-law of a retired fire captain, remaining true to the traditions of the workers of the telephone world and also to the code of her father-in-law when fire broke out a short time ago in the plant of the National Furniture Manufacturing Company. She stuck to her post, sending out calls for help and spreading the alarm, and while the fire swept the entire stockroom and factory, the salesroom and offices at the other end of the building were undamaged, due to her pluck.

Jews and Arabs are squabbling about that wailing wall again. It seems that they will never get caught up with their wailing.

SIDELIGHTS

Folks should co-operate with census enumerators, of course. But warning is suggested by the case of a Chicago woman. She admitted two men claiming to be census takers, who promptly bound and gagged her and escaped with $50,000 worth of jewelery.

Yes, there is a Santa Claus. It is the name of a post office in Indiana which is swamped with mail during every Christmas season. Congressman Rowbottom has introduced a bill to increase the postmaster's compensation above that ordinarily provided for a fourth-class post office.

Undertaker Zolt of Chicago may have a second-hand coffin for sale cheap. When he sued a widow for her husband's funeral expenses the judge told him: "You can go to the cemetery, remove the coffin and leave the body to the tender mercies of the Almighty."

This one comes from West Africa: A minister announced that on the following Sunday he would preach on "Liars," and requested all his flock to read the 17th chapter of Mark in the meantime. The next Sunday he asked all who had read the chapter to raise their hands, and about half the congregation did so. "You are the ones I will preach to," he said. "There is no 17th chapter of Mark."

The Navy has received 4,971 different suggestions for safety devices whereby men trapped in sunken submarines might be given a chance for their lives, but has rejected all but one as being impracticable. The best plan would be to abolish the submarine altogether.

An enterprising fellow took a novel method of picking up some change at a highway bridge near Demopolis, Ala., recently. Equipped with a portable gate and a red lantern, he stopped tourists at the bridge at night and collected tolls until he happened to stop a driver who knew the ropes.

Short story: Margaret Black, of Chicago, passed a bad check for $10 on James Dale. who had her arrested, After hearing the girl's hard luck tale the judge dismissed the case. Court spectators took up a collection to reimburse Dale. Dale presented the money to Margaret Black.

And speaking of names again, a John D. Rockefeller was sentenced to a penetentiary term of 7 to 10 years for robbery at Marquette, Mich.

Punch's famous advice to those about to get married, contained in the one word, "Don't." is paraphrased by that given by an Atlanta newspaper to a subscriber who asked: "Is it unlucky to postpone a wedding?" The answer was: "Not if you keep on doing it."

After divorcing her husband, Mrs. Mary Draft of Philadelphia consented to allow him to remain in their jointly owned home as a boarder. It didn't work, however, as she later told the judge: "I had to put him out, because he began beating me just as though we were married."

It would be supposed that "Red" Hill, who has pulled the bodies of nearly 100 suicides and stunt performers out of the water at Niagara Falls, had acquired a wholesome fear of the great cataract by this time. He declares, however, that he will shoot the falls in a steel barrel on Decoration Day.

This is the day of the red-heads in the movies, if the result of a popularity straw vote by a motion picture magazine means anything. The five actresses standing at the top of the list are in this order: Clara Bow, Colleen Moore, Nancy Carroll, Joan Crawford and Greta Garbo. Bow, Carroll and Crawford have red hair.

Things looked dark for a Texas man charged with wife desertion and facing a two year sentence. But when he convinced the judge that the wife had beat him, snapped a pistol in his face and slept with the family butcher knife under her pillow, sentence was suspended.

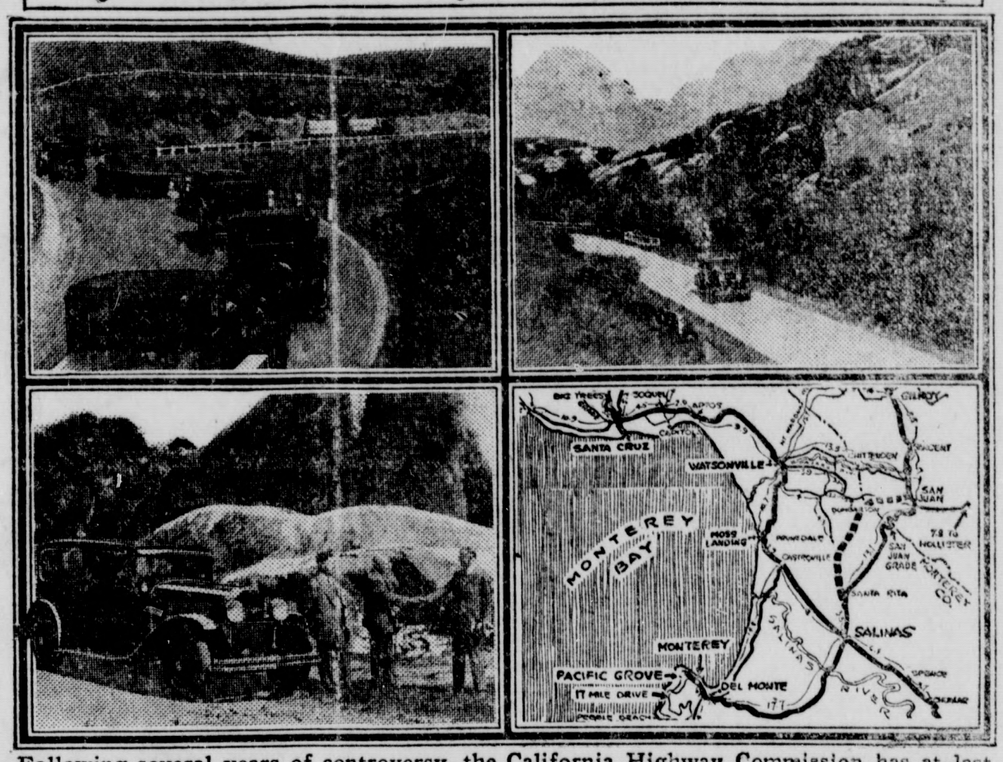
New Highway To Skirt San Juan Grade



Following several years of controversy, the California Highway Commission has at last ordered construction of the Prunedale Highway, which will allow Coast Route motorists to avoid climbing the San Juan Grade. Photographs show typical congestion on present grade and views of 1930 Buick scout sedan on proposed Prunedale route. Close-up view of Buick reveals Mayor Frank Abbe of San Juan and George Gould (left) shaking hands over settlement of the controversy. Mayor Abbe is happy because the state retains the San Juan Grade as part of highway system, and Mr. Gould rejoices because his Monterey County Highway Committee has won a seven-year fight for the Prunedale route. C. A. McAdams, Salinas Buick executive, looks on. Dotted line on map shows approximate route of new link.

TALKIE TREATS AT DALY CITY THEATRE

Starting a week of exceptional talking attractions the Daly City Theatre will present for tomorrow Myrna Loy, with William Collier, Jr., and a host of Warner Brothers' stars, in "Hard Boiled Rose." On the same bill there will be an additional feature play and the comedy and Metro News service.

For Sunday the Daly City Theatre will present the year's greatest talking mystery story, "The House of Secrets," a picture play guaranteed to send the chills running up and down the spine.

Monday night will bring Eddie's Advershow and two big feature picture plays, one a talkie and the other silent. "The Soul of France," Paramount's big sound production, will have its first run showing at the Daly City. It is a sound production of the French side of the war and is said to be one of the most realistically thrilling presentations to date. Bob Steele will apppear in a silent picture called "The Cowboy and the Outlaw." There will be a comedy and News Reel in addition.

For Tuesday and Wednesday the Daly City Theatre will present a big treat attraction. See and hear the famous Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees in the massive radio picture special, "The Vagabond Lover." On the same bill Laurel and Hardy will cut up in "They Go Boom."

For Thursday and Friday, May 1 and 2, Harold Lloyd in "Welcome Danger" will be the feature attraction.

Perhaps there isn't much in a name, but it must be disconcerting to nervous persons to contemplate the sign on a hearse seen at New Carlisle, O. It reads, "Doom Bros., Undertakers."

Anyway, the talkies have served to cramp the style of the sub-title readers in the seat behind.

FIRE PREVENTION CAMPAIGN OPENED

The annual Stop Forest Fires campaign of the United States Forest Service and State Division of Forestry opened at Tracy on April 21, reports District Forester S. B. Snow, chief of the Federal forests in this state. The spring campaign will cover 56 junior and senior high schools on the east side of the San Joaquin valley, and continue during the summer in the mountain towns and communities within or adjacent to the national forests of the Sierra region. High schools on the west side of the valley will be visited this fall.

Ranger James N. Gibson a forest school graduate and officer of the California district U. S. Forest Service, will conduct the campaign in a special fire prevention truck equipped with electric generator, projectors, screens and other equipment necessary for putting on a complete motion picture show. The program will consist of wild life and forest fire motion picture reels made in California especially for the campaign.

This is the third session of the stop forest fires campaign in the state which in 1928 and 1929 covered 52 schools in the Sacramento valley and 265 towns and settlements in northern California and carried the message of fire prevention to approximately 50,000 people.

This campaign is being conducted with the approval of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The New Coöperation

It has been said that the secret of our Nation's success in the crisis of 1917 was the efficient mobilization of man power and resources—Army, Navy, Red Cross, Industry—every available energy, working in unison.

Community competition demands a similar strategy.

It demands the mobilization of every civic enterprise. The mobilization of every civic force which has an objective of its own—business, industrial, religious, educational, social, fraternal and individual citizenship.

With singleness of purpose, the efforts of these units must be directed into one great channel—that of linking town and country into the Greater Community.

This Is the New Cooperation

The interests, ambitions, pleasures, prosperity and everyday requirements of the area which is right at our borders, run in a parallel line with ours. Merged, we become a unit of double strength, double power—The Greater Community!

Few towns put forth the necessary effort to cover the business, industrial, religious, educational, social and fraternal requirements of this greater community area—although this way lie greatest possibilities!

It is the extra effort of developing the Greater Community that spells success.

A Town Is a Service Center

The Six Essential Services are:

1. Employment
2. Merchandising and Marketing
3. Transportation and Communication
4. Social and Recreational
5. Educational
6. Religious

Figures prove that the number of those who go out of town to do business is small compared to those who should—but do not—come into town to do business.

Hence, the new cooperation is the answer to the challenge—"Fortune awaits one Community in ten."

Our deputy state and volunteer wardens will be interested in the following. A Willows man lost his tags and hunting license and paid a fine of $300 for transferring his deer tags to someone else. Venison found in this violator's possession was given to Glenn county hospital patients.

An El Sereto man paid $150 for failing to put tags on deer that he killed. He had eaten the deer when arrested. Another fine of $50 was assessed against a Santa Rosa hunter who failed to tag his deer.

A citizen of Portugal who declared he was a citizen of the United States lost fishing, hunting and deer tag licenses and paid a fine of $40 as a result of the wrong information furnished. Deputy Lee Atkinson made the arrest.

Deputy Forrest McDermott, assisted by Volunteer Deputy Alden Moody, worked up a difficult case on a trio of deer hunters, securing fines that amounted to $600. One of the hunters paid $150 for killing a doe, while the other two paid $200 and $250 for pursuing the doe. The offense occurred before the season opened.

An Oakland man who took seventy Pismo clams that were too small to comply with the law, paid a fine of $250 when arrested by Deputy Fred Jost of Salinas. Post got his man at Moss Landing, and Judge Harry King of Castroville, levied the fine.

Killing a spike buck on Thomas Mountain in Riverside county cost an Anaheim hunter $300.

Three hunters of Russian nativity killed a deer on Patterson Mountain, in Fresno county. Deputy F. A. Bullard took them into custody when he found they had made false statements in securing their licenses. Each paid a fine of $100 and the deer was given to the Indian School at Dunlap.

Deputy M. F. Joy, of Burlingame, arrested three San Francisco men for shooting non-game birds. They all pleaded guilty in the court of Judge Edward Farrell, of South San Francisco, and paid fines of $300 each.

On Sunday, October 6, 1929, 1,250 fishermen, by actual count, angled for striped bass along the Contra Costa shoreline between Rodeo and Pittsburg, San Francisco Bay region.

The fishing was from the shore and from boats. The count was made by a party of Pittsburg Chamber of Commerce and city officials to obtain at first hand facts and figures showing the need for a yacht harbor to accommodate amateur fishermen.

More than 160 boats were occupied by fishermen, the officials discovered. The fishing boats were so thick in the vicinity of Pittsburg that it was difficult to pass through.

Paul Jonkers, a resident of Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, paid the largest fine ever assessed in the state of South Dakota for killing pheasants. Apparently Jonkers engaged in the business of canning the birds on an extensive scale. He was apprehended just as he was about to leave South Dakota in a high-powered automobile. One hundred and fifty pheasants in half-gallon and gallon jars were packed in the machine.

Judge Fisher, of Redfield, South Dakota, assesed a fine of $2,000, establishing a new record.

It is the belief of Captain Walter Sellmer, Fairfax, California, that the division's program of education should not neglect the violator. In fact, emphasis should be placed on efforts to win the violator over to the cause of conservatin.

Joe Morris was convicted of shooting a deer with the aid of a spotlight and was sentenced by Judge H. De la Montanya to serve six months in the Marin county jail.

"In presenting Joe Morris with small gifts and visiting him occasionally, it is my object to gain his friendship," writes Sellmer. "A man in jail has plenty of time for thought; he is lonely and glad to hove someone to talk to. Even an arresting officer is welcome. If it can be possible to bring about a better understanding of the laws for the protection of our wild life, it should be done."

PENINSULA CROSSING CONFERENCE EXPANDS

The Peninsula Grade Crossing conference will join with the California Committee on Public Safety in a campaign to eliminate dangerous rail crossings throughout California. The decision was voted at a meeting last Friday night in Palo Alto, when the conference also voted to back a proposed ten million dollar state bond issue to finance crossing reconstruction. The finance plan provides that the state shall contribute $2 and the railroad $3 for each $1 posted by a city or county to separate grades at a railroad crossing.

CUT-IN DRIVER CAUSES INJURY OF TEN PEOPLE

Assistant District Attorney Richard Bell, Judge Edward I. McAuliffe and Officer Stanley Wood, all of Redwood City, suffered minor injuries in a tangle of ten automobiles Saturday evening at San Bruno. Jack Bell, student and younger brother of the assistant district attorney, was also slightly hurt. Officer Wood, who suffered a cut on the face, was the most seriously injured. The car was driven by Judge McAuliffe.

E. J. Morrison, Fresno, treated at Mills Memorial hospital, was the most seriously hurt of ten injured in the tangle. Morrison suffered a severe gash on the head, but is now much improved.

The accident occurred when an automobile bus crashed the rear of another car which made a sudden stop to avoid collision with a driver who was "cutting in," said San Bruno police. The Redwood City party was returning from the army air manouvres at Mills Field.

BETTER PURCHASE LICENSE IF YOU ARE GOING FISHING

The Division of Fish and Game of the Department of Natural Resources has issued a warning to all anglers who contemplate visiting the various trout streams of the state on the opening day of the season that angling licenses should be procured at once. The deputy game wardens will be active in their patrol of all trout waters and the licenses of all fishermen will be checked.

In the past, according to the statement of John L. Farley, executive officer of the Division of Fish and Game, sportsmen have been able to get their licenses from the officers of the United States Forest Service at outlying ranger stations. This season many of the forest rangers will not be issuing licenses, and anglers who fail to get their licenses before leaving on fishing trips will be unable to do so in the field.

The angling license issued by the Division of Fish and Game entitles the holder to fish for game species throughout the calendar year. There is no saving to the sportsman if he postpones the act of taking out the license until just prior to the time of departure for a fishing trip. In the hurry and excitement of getting away, the license is sometimes overlooked and fishermen thereby put to considerable trouble in finding someone to issue them a license.

BIG DIAL SWITCHBOARD FOR NEW BANK BUILDING

A single dial P. B. X. will serve the communication needs of the National City Bank, the National City Company, and the City Bank and Farmers Trust Company upon the completion of the new building to be erected in New York City.

The initial installation will consist of 38 manual positions and the necessary dial equipment to care for the operation of 2,800 extensions, 390 trunks, and 220 tie lines. In addition to extension-to-extension dialing, the installation is arranged for direct dialing from extensions for outgoing central office calls and outgoing calls over tie lines to branch banks. The ultimate capacity of this P. B. X. is about 7,000 lines, and almost an entire floor of the new building will be required to house it.

NATIONAL FOREST LAND HAS MANY STRANGE USES

If you are looking for a place to locate an airplane landing field, fish hatchery, church, sawmill, fur farm, sanitarium, or recreation camp, you will find areas suitable for all these and many other purposes in the national forests of California, state officials of the United States Forest Service.

The Federal forests, contrary to general belief, are not unbroken tracts of mountain wilderness, but include within their boundaries many towns and settlements, as well as a wide variety of government land uses, ranging from icehouses to astronomical observatories, golf courses to cemeteries, and butterfly farms to artillery ranges. But one form of use that is never permitted is the erection of advertising signs on national forest land.

Special land use permits issued by the Forest Service in the California national forests now total 9,850. Recreational uses lead with 6,000 permits for summer home sites and 300 permits for summer resorts which were visited by some 500,000 vacationists last summer. Eight cities and two counties have permits for 15 recreation camps in the national forests representing an investment of more than $300,000 where 10,000 citizens obtain a vacation at nominal cost. Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Girl Scouts, Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A. and 4-H Clubs also have 75 summer outing camps in the Federal forests of the State.

Of the 9,850 permits in force, 2,750 are issued free of charge for such land uses as stockmen's cabins and drift fences, schools, municipal, county, and boys' and girls' recreational camps, churches and cemeteries. Permits for use of land connected with lumbering operations and grazing of livestock on Government land, or water power development, are not included in these figures.

A RECOGNITION

Out of the excitement and anxiety of the recent city election comes a compliment for Louis Johns, who has distinguished himself for consideration of the feelings of others. Although he was the captain of his precinct and as such he had much to do, still he was so thoughtful of the overworked election officers that he made each of them feel comfortable throughout the long day. Now they take pleasure in sponsoring this tribute to him. Respectfully submitted.

NOT HIS IDEA OF JUSTICE

A business man was involved in a legal trial. On the date set for the verdict he found it necessary to leave town, but left instructions with his lawyer to wire him as soon as the verdict was rendered.

The verdict was duly rendered and the lawyer wired as follows: "Justice has been rendered at last."

When the business man read the telegram, he wired back, "Start proceeding to appeal the case."—Forbes Magazine.
